Work Together Rotorua and Inspire Gallery are initiatives of St Chads Charitable Trust

Background

- St Chads exists to enhance the lives of people with a disability. Many Rotorua people and their families have benefited from the service over many years. Traditionally, music has been an important tool. Art is now also a particular strength of the organisation.
- While St Chads history spans almost 40 years, in 2009 a major service review with extensive consultation was undertaken. The result was a change of emphasis reflecting the external environment, going away from St Chads being primarily a day activity Centre to becoming a service where individuals obtain training and support to be active citizens, included in their communities. The Centre remains as a meeting place and a venue to nurture abilities, but the primary aim is to facilitate individuals finding satisfying roles and to participate in the wider community. Those who engage with the service drive their supports according to their needs, strengths and aspirations. Partnership with both natural and formal supports is essential, as is the establishment of relationships with all spheres of the wider community.
- As well as being the preferred direction of most stakeholders, this approach is consistent with the long-standing New Zealand Disability Strategy, 2001 (now the New Zealand Disability Strategy 2016-2026), the Enabling Good Lives framework, the Department of Labour Pathways to Inclusion, 2001, and with Article 19 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities which recognises the equal right of all persons with disabilities to live in the community with choices equal to any other, ratified by New Zealand in 2008.
- This Strategic Plan Review is based on the 2006, 2009, 2015 and 2018 strategic documents, identifying areas where effort needs to be concentrated, and on building sustainability and capacity for the future. A review of the Plan and changes are undertaken each year to recognize a changing environment and the progress being made.
- The current environmental context is one of significant change with Enabling Good Lives and the Disability Support Services (DSS) System Transformation being a significant influencer in the delivery of services to people with disabilities in New Zealand. St Chads has made significant changes in the last few years to position itself to thrive in the changing context. This Strategic Plan builds on the success of those changes and focusses on outcomes for our client-customers both current and future, and sustainability for the organisation to ensure St Chads continues to provide a great outcomes for many years to come.
- St Chads continues to be governed by a Board of Trustees and led operationally by a General Manager. It is a registered Charitable Trust under the Charities Act 2005. St Chads holds contracts for services with the Ministry of Social Development, Ministry of Health and Accident Compensation Corporation.

Values

St Chads is an organisation where we:

- Respect and value people equally
- Enable people to reach their aspirations and/or potential
- Innovate in all aspects of our activities and are committed to working with people with disabilities to enable lives of increasing independence, choice and community participation

Philosophy

- People with disabilities make a valued contribution to the community
- St Chads' mission is to serve the people who attend. The organisation, therefore, should be driven from the ground up: people-driven. This means respect and attention to peoples' needs, decisions and aims, as well as valuing the other people and organisations in their lives
- Each person has his or her own set of strengths, needs and wants (or aspirations). These have to be identified by careful enquiry and observation over time and exposure to new opportunities
- A focus on growth and development, leading to effective integration in the community. Appropriate safeguards need to be put in place, but more risk is implied than when people remain in a Centre.
- People with a disability are entitled to the norms valued by others in society:
  - ◆ relationships with compatible people
  - ◆ roles within society, both at work and for leisure
  - ◆ opportunities to continue learning; new experiences
  - ◆ suitable housing; financial and personal safety etc.

The Enabling Good Lives Approach

Vision

In the future,
disabled people and their families will have greater choice and control over their lives
and supports,
and make more use of natural and universally available supports

Principles

Self-determination

Disabled people are in control of their lives.

Beginning early

Invest early in families and whānau to support them; to be aspirational for their disabled child; to build community and natural supports; and to support disabled children to become independent, rather than waiting for a crisis before support is available.

Person-centred

Disabled people have supports that are tailored to their individual needs and goals, and that take a whole life approach rather than being split across programmes.

Ordinary life outcomes

Disabled people are supported to live an everyday life in everyday places; and are regarded as citizens with opportunities for learning, employment, having a home and family, and social participation - like others at similar stages of life.

Mainstream first

Disabled people are supported to access mainstream services before specialist disability services.

Mana enhancing

The abilities and contributions of disabled people and their families are recognised and respected.

Easy to use

Disabled people have supports that are simple to use and flexible.

Relationship building

Supports build and strengthen relationships between disabled people, their whānau and community.
